MAYOR'S MESSAGE

I am pleased to present the Wodonga Council Cultural Services Plan 2012-2017. The plan is a key council document that will set the vision and strategies for the council's cultural services' team during the next five years. It demonstrates the council's ongoing commitment to developing partnerships in the community that will aid the delivery of innovative, entertaining, experimental, educational and diverse cultural programs across the city.

The council understands that arts, culture and events have an intrinsic value, that they are an essential element to life and what it is to live in a community.

The arts provide a rich expression of the ideology and identity of the local community and the opportunity for creative dialogue and exchange. The arts are integral to a mature community that can celebrate both the commonalities and differences that make it dynamic.

The council acknowledges the significant role that cultural development plays in the positive social development of this city; with well-known links to increasing a community's connections, wellbeing, social cohesion, skills development and resilience.

The council also believe cultural services are an essential element in developing the local economy through tourism, attracting and retaining skilled workers, generating new industries and business innovation.

The council strongly values the role that professional and community cultural organisations and individual practitioners bring to the region. Local cultural industries are critical to the ongoing liveability of this great regional city.

VISION

Wodonga celebrates a strong sense of community, the natural beauty of the environment and diverse opportunities.

As the community continues to grow and develop, part of the journey is learning and remembering who we are, where we have come from and how we have grown while also embracing innovation, change and diversity.

Wodonga Council's vision for arts and culture is one that includes everyone, enables the community to express its identity and ideals in diverse art-forms, and fosters professional arts practice, creative exploration and innovation in the wider community.

During the next decade, Wodonga will be known as the creative hub of North East Victoria and base for exploring the diversity of the region. It will have strong and dynamic relationships that build the sustainability of the community.

The arts will enhance the social connections, aptitude for learning, and expression of the wider community by integrated cultural experiences that are exploratory, participatory, educational and entertaining. Wodonga Council will also aim to provide an environment to suit artists of all mediums and professional life stages.

The council is excited, passionate and committed towards cultural development and this is demonstrated in planning, infrastructure, resourcing, programming and events. The council will seek to integrate art into many aspects of community life and encourage people to be engaged and participate.

The rich diversity of arts and cultural opportunities available throughout the city everyday is a strong contributor to the health, wellbeing and happiness of the Wodonga community.

Making music was also popular (15 per cent) with one in 10 playing an instrument and five per cent singing;

The survey also collected data on attendance at cultural venues and events and found that 71 per cent (1.9 million) of children had attended, outside of school hours, a public library, a museum, an art gallery or a performing arts event.

The Australia Council commissioned a report into the impact of six Australia Council research initiatives that embedded the arts in children's learning (Hunter, 2005). WHAT THE COMMUNITY TOLD US

To develop the Cultural Services Plan 2012-2017 and to help the council understand the priorities of the community, Wodonga Council facilitated several workshops with professional artists, local performers, community members and council staff. More than 60 people participated in these workshops and a further 10 people submitted written responses to requests for feedback.

In addition, more than 1650 people provided feedback in surveys in response to cultural programs, venues and events in the lead-up to developing the plan. Throughout the consultation, participants presented consistent themes which have been summarised below:

What are the issues?

- There is a need to retain and support existing artists in the city and attract new artists to visit, create and live in the area;
- Wodonga's cultural heritage needs to be strengthened, celebrated and be accessible;
- Wodonga's community identity is still evolving;
- There is potential for the activation of public spaces to engage diverse audiences and increase access to the arts;
- Private and public innovation needs to be fostered; and
- Professional training opportunities for artists have been reduced in the area which has the potential to significantly impact on the artistic community and the long-term availability of creative arts in the region.

What needs to change?

- Position Wodonga as a unique community and a significant cultural hub within North East Victoria;
- Foster the development of professional artists in the community;
- Investigate the potential for collaborative urban design;
- Strengthen relationships to communicate and market arts and culture programs; and
- Forge innovative partnerships in order to engage the wider community.

What can be achieved?

Consistently, the messages received focused on the potential for:

- More arts and cultural activities being provided and accessed;
- Strong community involvement in arts and culture;
- More artists living and working locally;
- Greater support for young and emerging artists;
- Increased connections between the artistic community;
- Well built, integrated and utilised spaces throughout the city;
- Cultural heritage that is relevant and engaging for residents and visitors; and
- A strong regional reputation for excellence and diversity in the arts.

DEVELOPING THE PLAN

To ensure that this plan was based on a strong strategic framework, and accurately reflected the vision and needs of the Wodonga community and both the Victorian and Australian governments, the following documents were considered during its development:

- Australian Council for the Arts, 2011, Strategic Direction;
- Australia Council for the Arts, 2010, More than bums on seats: Australians are participating in the arts;

The Cultural Services Plan 2012-2017 articulates the priorities and strategic direction for cultural services for the next five years and demonstrates the council’s commitment to arts, events and cultural initiatives across the city.
